Autopilot #01 - The perfect pitch

Disclaimer

I need to apologise. You are not going to pass from 0 to 1000.

– not yet.

You need some swag and good relations at the beginning.

Today you need to learn how to pitch like a startup.

Next time, I will teach you how to hack LinkedIn for sending batches of 500 invitations.

First, you need to learn how to growth.

How to grow ?

You need a good profile. What is a great profile?

You can't be naughty if you are not perfect

I spend a lot of time to polish mine. Have a look for inspiration and don't forget to ask me as a friend

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/david-leuliette-456701121/>

I am going to accept your invitation but you need to be patient.

Every-time I open the website I have around 500 invitations.

I need to accept your friend request for sharing my contacts with you.

Why?

As a friend we are going to share our contact. It's perfect to start growing your relations because I have a lot of talent managers and recruiters.

A great profile

As Richard Branson says, you need to find your perfect pitch. Here is how to make a great impact when people find your profile.

1. Create a Twitter-friendly headline. (Less than 140 characters)
2. Don't tell to people where you are now, but tell who you can become
3. Use simple words, even your grandma needs to understand it

Here is an example extracted from my linked profile:

My goal is simple: Do everything I can to become the best front-end developer in the world.

- How much does it matter to you?
- Do you believe in your story?
- Can you condense what you are doing in one sentence?

Your missions of the day:

- Send me a contact request
- Find your perfect pitch

Autopilot #02 - Street Cred

Person of interest

With the help of my previous email, you found your perfect pitch.

Your mission of the day is having “street cred” to become an authority person.

How?

You need some stars on your profile ★★★★★

Featured Skills & Endorsements

Choose your best 5 skills and ask to your family / friends / coworkers to upvote them.

When I was teacher, I asked to all my students to upvote my skills in JavaScript and git (Because I am able to share my knowledge about this skills, so I deserve some stars).

Now the fun part.

I asked to all my students to give star to their right neighbour.

Repeat this 10 times.

Imagine after 30 minutes, everyone in the room have great featured skills.

I have another hack for skills.

Ask directly to your network using this template:

Hi <NAME>!

You have a great profile!

What skills would you like to be endorsed for?

My project during the vacations is getting my professional and LinkedIn network in order, so the first thing that I am doing is a round of endorsements for creatives.

When you have a moment, could you endorse my profile for ANY of these 5 skills?

- Git*
- Front-end*
- Design*
- Ruby on Rails*
- CSS*

All the best,

Recommendations

Ask to friends or old coworkers to write an awesome recommendation. Ask him / her to tell a story about your work and which problem did you solved together.

Here is an example:

I was impressed by Maud's ability to handle the changes requested by customers. This skill often takes years to develop but with Maud it seems natural.

Now the fun part.

When I was lead developer, I asked to my team to write a recommendation about the job delivered.

When It's done, choose another teammate.

Repeat this 3 times.

Imagine after 30 minutes, everyone in my team had great recommendations.

Your missions of the day:

- ▶ Use upvote featured skills hack
- ▶ Write and ask 3 recommendations

Autopilot #03 - LinkedIn Growth Hack

Because you followed my advices, your LinkedIn profile have the perfect pitch with nice skills.

You are ready to grow.

Today I will teach you how to hack linkedIn and send batch of 500 invitations at a time.

Invitations automation

 protip: disable all notifications. Emails and push on your mobile. One of my friend receive around 350 notifications and emails the same day using this hack.

<https://www.linkedin.com/mynetwork/>

1. Use Google Chrome
2. Go to my network page
3. Scroll down
4. Scroll down
5. Scroll down
6. Open the JavaScript console with right clic / inspect
7. Copy / paste this code

javascript

$('[data-control-name="invite"]').click();

With this hack I invited 500 people at a time. If you need help reply to this email directly or watch this video:

<https://youtu.be/7kxt1aXumzl>

 protip: With Great Power Comes Great Responsibility. If you open a fresh new account and ask 1000 people at a time, I am pretty sure you will be banned by LinkedIn. Be smart and use this hack one time per day.

Invitations cooldown

 protip: If you reach more than 3000 invite in your waiting list, you can't send invitations anymore.

Don't panic!

Go to your invitations manager, delete all of them and the show can go on!

<https://www.linkedin.com/mynetwork/invitation-manager/sent/>

I have another good news. If you have too many invitations, you can use the same hack as before. Only the copy / paste code change.

1. Use Google Chrome
2. Go to invitations page
3. Open the JavaScript console with right clic / inspect
4. Copy / paste this code

javascript

$( '[data-control-name="withdraw_single"]' ).click();

Your missions of the day:

👉 Scroll down and send automated friend request

👉 Don't abuse to the system, you can be banned

Happy Hacking!

Autopilot #04 - Retention is king 👑

Care about your first relations

Example: if you match every people on tinder and never answered to them, what's the point?

In my previous lesson, you learned how to send hundreds of request in seconds. If you have a great profile, a lot of people are contacting you.

The problem is you don't have time to answer to all messages. The good thing is, I have a solution.

I have a script for that

– David @work

Retention script

I am crazy about automation because I am a hacker. I never solve 2 times the same problem.

I automate.

This script allows me to answer every messages on LinkedIn.

Hello <NAME>,

If you want to keep contact, I created a small website for our next collaboration. Just fill in your information.
